TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN

John Ironside worked with a weekly, English-language newspaper published by our company, the Greek News. He began in July 1992, and finished in early December, to return to his homeland, Canada.

John did a number of jobs on the paper: photography, writing news stories and features, sub-editing copy and designing pages. He used Word Perfect on our IBM compatibles for preparing copy, and Word, QuarkXPress and Photoshop for the design of pages and scanning of graphics on our Macs.

John was deputy editor of the paper when he left. He tackled all his responsibilities with great energy and zeal, working long hours for the paper, in both producing stories and pages and in improving his knowledge of our computers and programs.
